Bringing fresh hope to our struggling market

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

FOOD festivals, trading for £10 and stalls for young people are just a few ideas to combat the "Catch-22 situation" crippling the town's market.

Sharon Fairweather has been appointed as the new market development officer for West Suffolk and hopes to turn Newmarket's market into a visitor attraction.

Miss Fairweather, who worked as a tourism development officer for St Edmundsbury Borough Council, told the News: "St Edmundsbury is really trying to invest in their markets in West Suffolk and promote them more as they realise how important they are to both the community and visitors."

"In Newmarket we are in a Catch-22 situation at the moment as you are not going to get traders in if you do not have the footfall."

"But then people will not come to shop if there are no stalls."

Miss Fairweather has worked on the successful Christmas Market in Bury St Edmunds but said different tactics work in different towns.

She said: "You can't just roll out what we have done before and expect it to work in different places."

"In the short term we are going to work with what we have got. I know there has been some trouble over where the market should be located but it is still very close to The Guineas shopping centre.

"The footfall there is so close, we just need to get people to come around the corner."

Miss Fairweather said she was optimistic about the future and said the market could offer something online shopping could not.

"We are planning to offer some really great incentives to get people onto the market."

"I think there is definitely a place for markets as people can shop online but this is a way to get them into the town centre. It becomes a visitor attraction."

One idea is to encourage young entrepreneurs through schools and organisations like the Prince's Trust. Another plan is "Trade for a Tenner' where new stallholders can try out the market for a day at a low cost.

WHO WILL BUY: Sharon Fairweather, left, has taken over as market development officer for West Suffolk. Above, Newmarket's market has suffered from a 'Catch-22' situation

She said: "There are lots of people out there who might have never thought of working on a market, like mums who are looking to go back to work or people who want to do something part time."

Other ideas range from community events and loyalty cards to street food festivals.

Trader Andy Neal, who runs a mobility stall, said: "This is the most positive thing to happen to the market for years."

"Before the council kept quiet and did nothing but now they have made this appointment they are actually taking some action – which has got to be good. Anything that is going to bring attention, awareness and raise the profile of the market is going to be great."

Newmarket will also take part in Love Your Local Market campaign in May when various events will take place to promote the market.

■ If you have ideas concerning the market, Miss Fairweather would love to hear from you. You can email her at: sharon.fairweather@westsuffolk.gov.uk.

SNOW WHITE: Anglesey Abbey will host its annual snowdrop festival. Pictures by Warren Gunn

Cheer up – it's going to be all white

CHASE away the winter blues with a brilliant burst of white.

Snowdrops have appeared at Anglesey Abbey earlier than normal this year so garden managers have decided to bring forward the annual Snowdrop Festival.

Howard Cooper,

spokesman for the National Trust property, said: "The milder weather has brought thousands of snowdrops into bloom, and our gardens are set to be transformed into a sea of white."

"The absence of an extended cold snap means many varieties are a good two to three weeks ahead of their normal flowering time – in fact a number of snowdrops were in flower prior to Christmas."

The festival will run from January 27 until March 9. Call (01223) 810086.

New partner for healthcare

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A PRIVATE healthcare provider, which looks after Newmarket Hospital, has signed a partnership with another health group to improve services in the county.

Serco took over Suffolk Community Healthcare in 2012 the service has come under pressure from health chiefs after struggling to meet targets across Suffolk.

Serco has now formed a partnership with Bromley Healthcare, an employee-owned social enterprise which will act in an advisory category.

Valerie Michie, Managing Director of Serco's healthcare business, said: "I am delighted to be working with Bromley Healthcare as we seek to develop a partnership that offers co-ordinated care for patients and their families.

"We anticipate financial pressures will lead to increased collaboration and consolidation as NHS trusts look to take on responsibility for patient care inside and outside hospitals.

"Alongside this, commissioners will aim to award contracts that reward providers for services that keep local populations as a whole well and out of hospital."

Jonathan Lewis, CEO of Bromley Healthcare, said:

"The NHS and local authorities need community health providers to change dramatically over the coming years to meet the challenge of looking after an ageing population who principally want to be cared for in their own homes.

"Serco's scale and knowledge of implementing change, plus Bromley Healthcare's detailed understanding of community services and our human touch, make us uniquely able to deliver these changes.

The multinational company signed a deal to run Suffolk Community Healthcare for three years for £140 million.

Now inquiry is to be held into supermarket refusal

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A LONG running supermarket saga continues to rumble on as planning chiefs set a date for a public inquiry into the decision to turn down a superstore at the top of the High Street.

Planning permission was granted in May last year for an expanded Tesco store in Fordham Road and a Morrisons in Exning Road but proposals for a Sainsbury's on the George Lambton Playing Fields and Unex group's proposal for an Asda in High Street were refused by planning chiefs at Forest Heath District Council (FHDC).

The unsuccessful applicants both launched appeals in July but Sainsbury's withdrew its appeal after the Government's National Planning Casework Unit (NPCU) decided not to call in the Tesco and Morrisons decisions.

However Unex has continued with its complaint against the refusal and a public inquiry will be held on February 25 which is expected to last four days.

The proposal is for a 3,716sq m food store with new retail units, a cafe and restaurant, an art gallery and a petrol station, along with associated parking.

FHDC development control committee originally refused the application on the grounds that it was contrary to heritage concerns and the district's horseracing policy, which forbids development on land historically associated with horseracing.

But a statement for appellant Bill Gredley said: "The site has not been used for racehorse training purposes in a generation."

It said the "long vacant

INQUIRY: An appeal has been lodged over the decision to refuse plans for a supermarket on land to the rear of Queensbury Lodge, which has been derelict for years and dilapidated" nature of the site meant the proposals would be beneficial for the town as it was returning the site to proper use.

The statement added: "The development will not result in a significant adverse impact on the town centre's overall vitality and viability, but indeed will enhance it by clawing back leakage of expenditure to out of centre facilities."

However Newmarket Town Council's planning committee voted to uphold its original objections from April 2013 at a meeting on Monday.

Isabelle Barrett, Newmarket town clerk, said: "The Committee objected on the grounds that it contravened the Horseracing Policy, the adverse affect on a residential street and a primary school from delivery lorries and lorries crossing the horse walk."

A number of residents have written to the district council to express their concerns about the proposals.

Linda Rutter, of Black Bear Lane, said: "The increased traffic will be a danger to children attending Houldsworth Valley Primary school."

"I do not want a 24 hour supermarket so close to my home and I'm sure many of my neighbours feel the same."

Barton Willmore, writing on behalf of Waitrose, said the store was objecting to the plans on "cumulative impact grounds" that allowing three or more supermarkets in Newmarket would have a significant impact upon the town.

And Shelagh Kavanagh, of High Street, said: "If the racing heritage of the town is upheld and the building and sites that have been in unbroken use since the time of King James remain, the World Heritage bid will attract funding and create high-status jobs and attract even more visitors to the town.

"A branch of ASDA will not achieve this."

The public inquiry will begin at 10am on February 25 at the FHDC offices, which is in College Heath Road, Mildenhall.

New store set to open its doors

A NEW supermarket is set to open in Soham.

Asda will open its doors at the site of Budgens, in Clay Street. No date has been given for the opening but a 7,000sq ft store will open in the "very near future".

Philip Bartram, senior property communications manager at ASDA, said: "We are delighted to be on the verge of coming to Soham, with the potential to bring the renowned Asda offer to the town's shoppers while securing and creating local jobs. James Graven's Budgens has served the community well for many years but this deal suits both parties at this time and it is our intention to further build on the crucial role the store on Clay Street plays in the local community."

Employees will keep their jobs and more jobs will be created.

Jonathan James, of the James Graven group, said he was grateful for support from customers.

He said: "The need for a major supermarket operator in Soham has been talked about for some time locally so the decision to let ASDA operate our town centre store will be the start of a new era."

On your marks, get set . . . bake!

After its hugely popular debut – which saw dozens of amateur bakers battle it out last year – The Cambridge Bake Off is back. Could you be a contender? ALICE RYAN gets cooking.

ARE your sponge cakes unsinkable? Do you make fondant flowers 'for fun'? Can you knock up a flawless Sachertorte blindfolded? If the answer to any of those questions is 'Yes', it's time to pull your pinny on and start scouring your cookbooks – The Cambridge Bake Off is back and open for entries.

Billed as the city's answer to TV's Great British Bake Off, the competition made its debut last year, attracting almost 100 entries. After two months, four rounds and umpteen hours in the kitchen, cancer research scientist Fiona McDuff was crowned winner.

Open to amateur cake makers living in the CB postcode area, the 2014 Bake Off will see contestants go head to head in four rounds once again, culminating in a live final.

Entries can also be posted to Cambridge Bake Off, c/o Cambridge Magazine, Winship Road, Milton, Cambridge CB24 6PP.

Taking into account both skill and enthusiasm for baking, 48 applicants will be selected on Monday, February 3 to go forward to round one, which takes place at Cambridge Cookery School on Saturday, February 8. They will be asked to bake a carrot cake, using a recipe of their choice, and deliver it to the school from 10-11.30am, returning to collect their results in person between 1-3pm.

For the first time friends and supporters are also invited to go along to the results segment of the day. They will be able to sample as many carrot cakes as they like for a suggested donation of £5, to be split between Cambridge night shelter Jimmy's and disability support service The Papworth Trust.

The judges will then put 24 bakers through to round two.

As well as the accolade of being hailed Cambridge's best baker, there is an added incentive to enter – all finalists will win a hamper full of baking goodies, and the winner will go home with a state-of-the-art KitchenAid stand mixer, courtesy of John Lewis.

Visit cambridge-news.co.uk and search Bake Off for more information about the competition and follow Cambridge Bake Off on Facebook and Twitter for regular updates.

TOP BAKER:
Last year's champion
Fiona
McDuff

Taking place in partnership with our sister paper, the Cambridge News and glossy magazine, Cambridge Magazine, the competition will challenge bakers to create a carrot cake in the first round, a chocolate cake in the second, a fruit and crème patissiere confection in third and an all-bells-and-whistles celebration cake – on an Easter theme – in the final.

Organised by Caroline Biggs of food festival Eat Cambridge and Tine Roche of Cambridge Cookery School, and sponsored by Tucker-Gardner, the Bake Off promises to be one of the biggest foodie events of the year.

If you entered last year and were unlucky, you are very welcome to try your hand again this time.

All you have to do is email your name, address and contact number – along with a photo of one of your best homemade cakes, and a couple of lines explaining why you love baking – to editorial@cambridge-magazines.co.uk by midnight on Friday, January 31.

THE RULES

- You must be aged 16 or above as of January 1, 2014.
- You must reside within Cambridgeshire or a CB postcode area.
- You must not have any catering NVQ or other catering qualification, unless acquired more than 10 years ago.
- Your main source of income must not derive from commercial baking in a professional environment (restaurant, hotel, canteen, shop and so on). The term 'baking' here refers to the preparation and oven cooking of flour-based goods such as bread, cakes, pastries, pies, tarts and biscuits. It does not refer to other food forms that can be oven cooked, or other methods of cooking.

- You must be able to commit to all four of the judging dates: February 8, March 1, March 22 and March 29.
- When selecting contestants for The Cambridge Bake Off, the following will be taken into account: skill, enthusiasm, drive, love of baking. The initial selection will be based on the application photographs and testimonials alone.
- By applying, you grant The Cambridge Bake Off and its partners rights and consents of copyright to use photographs of you and your cakes in promotional material (such as follow-up stories in the News, for example).

Poignant memorial held for airmen killed in crash

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

THOUSANDS of family, friends and military personnel gathered at RAF Lakenheath to pay tribute to four airmen killed in a helicopter crash in North Norfolk.

Capt Sean Ruane, Capt Christopher Stover, Tech Sgt Dale Mathews and Staff Sgt Afton Ponce, of the 56th Rescue Squadron, died when their HH-60G Pave Hawk helicopter crashed in marshland at Cley-next-the-sea while performing a low-level training mission on January 7.

More than 2,000 people attended a memorial service at the United States Air Force (USAF) base on Friday to honour the air crew who "made our world a better place".

Col Kyle Robinson, 48th Fighter Wing commander, said: "We seek to find meaning in their sacrifice.

"These Airmen go anywhere, anytime, under fire.

"They never sought out the spotlight. They are the quiet professionals.

"But this time, tragically, while performing that mission, they were killed.

"The things that they do are so that others can live."

He ended the speech with quotes from the Airman's Creed, specifically citing one of the last lines: "I will never leave an Airman behind."

Col Robinson said: "I will

TRIBUTES: Thousands of family, friends and military personnel gathered to pay tribute to Capt Sean Ruane, Capt Christopher Stover, Tech Sgt Dale Mathews and Staff Sgt Afton Ponce at RAF Lakenheath never ever say the Airman's Creed again without thinking of the crew of Jolly 22.

"They were wingmen to all of us, warriors to many, they never left anyone behind, they never faltered, and they never failed.

"In short, they made our world a better place."

Lt Col Jared Herbert, 56th Rescue Squadron commander, presented medals to the families of the fallen airmen, to recognise their distinguished accomplishments and exemplary military service.

He shared personal stories about each of the fallen airmen and then retired the call sign of the helicopter, Jolly 22, which will forever belong to the fallen aircrew.

Colleagues shared stories of the bravery of each airman as family and squadron members paid their final respects at displays dedicated to each fallen hero.

At the end of the service Amazing Grace was played on the bagpipes, while a moment of silence was observed and a salute was made in their honour.

Norfolk Police handed over the investigations to the USAF and the Ministry of Defence (MoD) as the crash is not deemed to be a criminal matter.

Investigations are ongoing and it is thought the inquiry could take a number of weeks.

Capt Stover and Capt Ruane were pilots on the flight, while Tech Sgt Mathews and SSgt Ponce were acting as special mission aviators on the training mission.

Flowers have been laid at the gates of RAF Lakenheath by grieving members of the community and green ribbons have been dotted around the outskirts of the base to honour the fallen airmen.

Another crime occurred in Rosehip Avenue where an insecure Ford Mondeo was entered and an Apple iPhone 5 and items of clothing were stolen.

Lucy has potential to go far . . .

I WAS interested in finding out if there was a person that was capable of giving the same excellent service Sir James has given to this constituency. If one wanted to take part in the voting, tickets had to be obtained prior to the meeting taking place.

There were two ways of obtaining tickets; by e-mail or phone. I used e-mail. After several days I received no reply. I phoned and was assured that the tickets would be ready for me on arrival. Initially when I arrived I could not enter as my name was not on the list. However eventually I was allowed to enter, having been given three different coloured slips of paper. The meeting was conducted in a very orderly fashion and each of the four candidates were given ample time to state their case and answer questions.

Heidi Allen stood out because she could answer all the questions from agriculture, commercial to domestic with an in-depth knowledge of the area which I thought only Sir James would have been capable of. This was surprising as she did not live in our constituency.

A lot of people seemed to be shocked when it was announced that Lucy Fazer was to be the adopted candidate for the next election.

From the establishment point of view, Lucy Frazer, as one of the youngest barristers in the country, if elected as MP, has not only the ability to be a good spokesperson for the Conservative Party but has the potential to rise to a high position in the parliamentary hierarchy. Heidi Allen might do extremely well as an independent candidate.

■ CAN you see this ghostly image peeking out from behind the lamppost in the centre of this photograph?

Paul Denman, from Bury St Edmunds, spotted this image in the trees while driving along Fordham Road, near the Severals, one morning.

He said: "I was looking at the trees and I couldn't believe it when I spotted it."

"It is really hard to see in the daylight but when it's still a bit dark you can catch a glimpse of what really looks like a horse and rider."

"It's really spooky." Have you spotted it too?

How about we get rid of the others and maybe make room for other enterprises, new stables? It remains dead land. No use to anyone and ugly; still making Newmarket look a dump. Anyone approaching from Exning Road would not think very much of the town.

Please support the Stroke Association

JUST like a number of your readers, I'm no stranger to the devastating effects of stroke. Two members of my family have suffered strokes in the past and it's a devastating and shocking thing to happen. They can come out of the blue to anyone, at any age - and that's why it's so hard to cope with.

I'm writing to you today to inform you about the tireless work of the Stroke Association and I'm relieved to tell you that more people are now surviving a stroke and making better recoveries. The charity's Life After Stroke Awards, which are sponsored by Toni & Guy Charitable Foundation, recognise the courage and dedication shown by stroke survivors, carers and volunteers in overcoming the challenges following a stroke. I was at these awards last year and it really is one of the most inspirational events I've ever been involved with.

One in six people will have a stroke at some point in their life. Many people know somebody who has had a stroke and has demonstrated outstanding determination in rebuilding their life.

So why not nominate them for an award? It's a brilliant opportunity to pay tribute to the people we know who show that there is life after stroke.

The closing date for nominations is 29 February 2014. To find out more, visit www.stroke.org.uk/lasa.

That building is a disgrace

PLEASE, please, please get something done about that derelict, scaffolding covered yard and buildings on the side of the main road into Newmarket from the racecourse!

It's an eyesore and a disgrace that the factions involved cannot sensibly resolve the issues that have left that site looking the dump that it is for the years that they have.

We need more for teenagers

AS a teenager local to the Newmarket area, there is little for someone of my age group to do.

I believe that a cinema would be a great idea for the town and would attract a wide variety of interest, and be very popular, as the nearest cinema is either in Cambridge or Bury St Edmunds.

I would like to see more things for my age group. I believe that if there is more for us to do, then this will help reduce young offenders and make the town a lot more enjoyable for teenagers.

More needs to be done for such a growing and changing age group.

Some things never change

IN my life I have been in and out of Newmarket. A gap of more than 20 years since I was here last.

When I came into town I passed what I expected to see on Exning Road, the empty buildings. Then the same at the clock tower. I sighed... H.Q. of racing and still a dump.

Since then I wrote to the council about the derelict sites and one has gone.

MORE MEMBERS FOR PROBUS CLUB

The first meeting of the New Year brought two new members in to the ranks of one of the most successful clubs or organisations in the Mildenhall area last Monday, when no less than 49 people met in the Mildenhall Social Club to hear an address by Graham Higgins to the town's Probus Club.

Entitled "Tales from the Bench", this talk was so interesting that the speaker continued until well after the normal closing time.

The next meeting, on Monday 27 January, brings a rather different topic, which should nonetheless be of great interest when "Photography" is the title for Graham Sawford.

THURSDAY CLUB

The main speaker for this Thursday's meeting will be a local church minister, the Rev Stephen Oliver, who will be giving what, in other organisations, is sometimes called a "My Job" talk, which should prove both interesting.

ALL IN THE GROUP TOGETHER

At a time when some members of the Royal British Legion community in Suffolk are seemingly considering a "doing away" with the current Group structure (whereby the 50 plus branches are put together for meetings/activities) those five within the Forest Heath area again had a 100% turnout last Wednesday evening, January 15. Under the chairmanship of Mr Bill Sadler, the five branches were all represented at the Brandon Royal British Legion club premises in London Road. Where local chairman Geoff Hughes.

Apart from the customary quarterly report from every local branch, a detailed description of that annual meeting, held at Needham Market, was given by the retiring county representative John Barker, assisted by Mildenhall chairman Tony Wheble, the latter bringing with him a splendid silver cup, presented at Needham to his branch.

This was given some years ago by a retiring county treasurer, Jim Reid, to be awarded annually to the branch donating their highest amount to the Suffolk County Benevolent Fund the previous year.

Ploughing on with tradition

CHILDREN donned colourful outfits to take part in an ancient farming tradition.

Pupils from Swaffham Prior Primary School paraded around the village behind a plough to celebrate Plough Monday – a historic celebration of the beginning of the agricultural year.

Traditionally farm workers would haul a plough from house to house, singing songs and collecting money from villagers.

For the first year, the school decided to replicate the ancient custom by making their own trip around the village following a plough.

Sam Hayward, office administrator at the school, said: "All the children were singing local folk songs and year's five and six learned some molly dancing."

"Everyone had their faces painted and wore bright colours. It was quite a spectacle."

The morning was supported by the Museum of Cambridge, which has helped to teach pupils about the area's heritage.

Work starts on heritage centre

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

WORK has begun on a multi-million pound racing heritage centre in Newmarket.

Construction started on Monday on the National Heritage Centre for Horseracing and Sporting Art, which will be based in the historic Palace House, the oldest surviving part of King Charles II's palace in Newmarket.

The £15 million heritage centre will see the National Horseracing Museum and British Sporting Art Trust move from their present location in High Street to the Palace House site and is expected to attract more than 40,000 visitors a year.

There will also be the space for the first time to accommodate horses from the Retraining of Racehorses charity at the five-acre site, which includes the derelict Palace House Stables.

Peter Jensen, chairman of the Home of Horseracing Trust said: "A huge amount of work has already taken place to get us to this point and after eight years of fundraising it is wonderful that we are now on our way."

"This is the first part of the story – the actual building work will take a year and then following the installation of specialist exhibitions and displays the museum will be moving over 8,000 objects from its present home to the new site."

He added: "It is so exciting now to be out of the starting gate."

The heritage centre is expected to be completed by the end of 2015; opening to the public in spring 2016.

Cllr Warwick Hirst, Forest Heath Cabinet member for Health, Leisure and Culture, said: "The National Heritage Centre has gone from a dream to a drawing and then full-scale project – it can only have got so far thanks to terrific support from a huge range of people and organisations who all recognise the importance of Newmarket as the international centre for horseracing."

The project will cost £15 million and more than £8 million has been raised from private donations and the remaining funds have been given by the Heritage Lottery Fund, Forest Heath District Council and Suffolk County Council.

Forest Heath District Council rescued Palace House by buying the site in 1992 after establishing that its special architectural and historic interest needed preserving.

Primary pupils become students for the day

CHILDREN swapped the classroom for the lecture theatre by spending a day at university.

For the second year in a row, students from Laureate Primary School visited Anglia Ruskin University (ARU), in Cambridge on Friday, January 17 where they were given a taste of academic life. Students' ambassadors from ARU were on hand to show pupils around and talk to them about their hopes for the future as part of the ARU Reach for the Stars programme. The Year Six pupils, who are in Pine Class, took a tour of the campus, learned about different courses and visited a lecture theatre. Reach for the Stars was set up to encourage children and young people to consider higher education.

Arrests made in police action day

TWO men from Newmarket have been arrested following a day of action across Suffolk.

Officers executed ten warrants on Wednesday as part of Operation Drawbridge, which was introduced to clamp down on burglaries in the county.

A 29-year-old man from Newmarket was arrested on suspicion of possession with intent to supply Class A drugs and has been released on bail until February 26.

Another 29-year-old man from Newmarket was arrested on suspicion of theft and remains in custody at the Bury St Edmunds Police Investigation Centre.

LIZZY BUCHAN

Police also cautioned a 21-year-old man from Mildenhall for possession of cannabis.

Det Chief Insp Bernie Morgan said: "These days of action are as much about crime reduction and prevention as they are about warrants and arrests."

"Burglary is an opportunist crime so if residents take simple steps to ensure that their property is secure then we can limit those opportunities and reduce the number of people who become victims."

In Mildenhall, Newmarket and Lakenheath officers were on patrol with cuddly mascot 'Badsey Wolf' looking out for vehicle and property insecurities.

A total of 24 insecurities were found, including the front door of one house, eight garages and 15 vehicles.

The majority of the home and vehicle owners were then made aware and proceeded to secure their property.

Det Chief Insp Morgan added: "Further Operation Drawbridge days of action will continue throughout 2014 so those individuals who engage in this type of criminality should continually look over their shoulder - you will be arrested, you will be charged and the likelihood is that you will go to prison."

Around 40 officers, including officers and dogs from the Police Dog Unit were briefed in the morning and tasked to carry out warrants across the county.

Sports funding given to the county

THOUSANDS of pounds in funding for sport has been awarded to Suffolk.

Sport England handed over £300,000 to Suffolk County Council, aimed at supporting initiatives to increase participation in sport and physical activity.

It is hoped that the Community Sport Activation Fund grant will support the county's ambition to become the most active in England.

Cllr Alan Murray, cabinet member for health and adult care, said: "With Suffolk's ambition to become the most active county in England we're regularly looking at new and innovative ways of encouraging a wide range of people to be active, whatever their age or background."

"This funding will allow us to improve on, and extend current successful initiatives, as well as increase sporting opportunities for a range of different people."

"Our focus is especially on assisting those who are currently inactive."

The money will not only be spent on increasing sporting opportunities, but on creating four more park runs across Suffolk, extending a swimming programme to older people and sustaining cycle participation. Opportunities for disabled people will be increased, and more volunteers will be recruited.

Activities will be delivered over a three year period and involve around 11,000 Suffolk people in sport and physical activity.

HELP: PCC Tim Passmore

PCC needs you to sit on police panels

IMPARTIAL volunteers are needed to sit on police misconduct panels.

To make sure panels are handled "fairly and professionally", Suffolk police and crime commissioner Tim Passmore is looking for three people to sit on panels in the region, who are over 18 years old and are not involved in policing.

Tim Passmore said: "It is really important that misconduct cases are handled fairly and professionally and having independent members on the panel is crucial.

"We are looking for candidates with strong analytical and communication skills, who have the ability to take a balanced, open minded and objective approach to the issues presented."

"This is a very interesting and responsible role and training will be given."

Members will receive a daily allowance for attending hearings as well as travel and subsistence costs.

They will also receive training and need to be prepared to attend hearings in any one of the eastern region policing areas.

Appointment as an independent member is initially for five years and subject to police vetting checks.

Full details of the role and the application form are published at www.suffolk-pcc.gov.uk.

The closing date for completed applications is Friday, February 14.

Man attacked with pool cue

NEWS REPORTER

A MAN who assaulted his former partner's father with a pool cue while drunk has been ordered to address his drinking.

Ben Payne, of New Cheveley Road, Newmarket, appeared at Ipswich Crown Court on Friday after pleading guilty to assault by beating and possession of an offensive weapon in a public place at an earlier date.

The court heard how on December 4 last year Payne had gone to the Newmarket home of his ex-partner, who is the mother of his two young children.

While Payne, 29, was at the house he had become involved in a scuffle with the woman's father, said Juliet Donovan, prosecuting.

Payne left the property but returned a short time later brandishing a broken pool cue and assaulted the victim, who suffered soreness to his neck which still affects him.

Miss Donovan said witnesses had described how Payne had been shouting and swinging the pool cue, which the victim eventually managed to wrench away from him and throw into a garden.

Payne, who alleged that he had not started the incident, was drunk and later told police that he could hardly stand up.

Miss Donovan told the court Payne had said that if he had been sober the incident would never have occurred.

He said he did not know why he was carrying the pool cue.

Defending, Hugh Vass said Payne had gone to his GP to seek help with his alcohol problem and been prescribed medication which made him violently sick if he consumed alcohol.

Payne had expressed genuine remorse for his actions, added Mr Vass.

Mrs Recorder Ann McAllister placed him under Probation Service supervision for 12 months and ordered Payne to participate in an alcohol treatment programme to help him address his issues.

In addition, Payne will be subject to a 7pm and 7am curfew confining him to his home address on Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the next three months.

Vehicle crime spree in town street

THIEVES have broken four cars in the same night.

The first three incidents occurred at around 3am, between January 13 and 14 in New Cheveley Road, Newmarket.

A black Peugeot 106 had a lock removed and a window smashed, a red Seat Leon had a lock forced and a green Mazda MX5 convertible had a window forced open.

The cars were searched and an Apple iPod and headphones were stolen from inside the Seat Leon.

The fourth incident took place over the same night in Cheveley Road. The door lock of a Volkswagen Passat was removed and a sat nav on the windscreen was stolen.

Call police on 101.

Hospice is praised for care standards

■ DEBRA FOX AND LIZZY BUCHAN

A HOSPICE has shone following a surprise inspection by the care watchdog.

St Nicholas Hospice Care was assessed in December, following an unannounced inspection by the Care Quality Commission (CQC).

The report, which was published on December 31, praised the hospice across the board.

Barbara Gale, St Nicholas Hospice Care Chief Executive, said: "We are so pleased the CQC report has recognised the outstanding quality of care provided by our brilliant staff."

"I want to take this opportunity to thank each and every member of the team for maintaining the very highest of standards and providing some of the best care in the country."

St Nicholas Hospice Care's services

PRAISE: Chief executive Barbara Gale

were measured against a checklist, to ensure that the care provided meets Government standards.

Every service evaluated measured up to the Government's recommendations. Patients, families and staff were also spoken to as part of the inspection, which was a routine visit.

One person is reported as saying "I can't fault any of the care. It is a wonderful experience and the staff here should have a halo".

A staff member also commented that everyone works as a team and focuses on making the hospice a "happy place to work".

"We found that before people received any care or treatment they were asked for their consent and the provider acted in accordance with their wishes," said the report.

"People's needs were assessed and care and treatment was planned and delivered in line with their individual care plan."

Inspectors found care records were sometimes difficult to access but were assured measures were in place to make sure information was more readily available.

Vans sought in relation to crime spree

A RED van and a yellow van are being sought by police after a crime spree across two towns and four villages.

Police said yesterday in the previous 48 hours officers have seen a number of crimes across the southern area of East Cambridgeshire.

The incident range from thefts from vehicles overnight to burglaries in the daytime in Newmarket, Woodditon, Burrough Green, Soham, Reach and Bottisham.

A spokeswoman for Cambridgeshire Constabulary said: "We have also had a couple of suspicious vehicles reported to us, a red van and a yellow van, while we are unable at present to link these vehicles with the crime series, they are definitely worth keeping an eye out for."

Anyone with information is asked to call police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

Tragic house fire victim started blaze

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A WOMAN's death in a fire she had started herself may have been the unexpected result of "a cry for help", an inquest has heard.

Anne Guinle, 51, refused her husband's desperate pleas to leave their home in Gazeley Road, Kentford, as smoke and flames engulfed the building.

An inquest at Bury St Edmunds on Wednesday heard how staff from the nearby Fothergill's Seeds used fire extinguishers to get inside but were beaten back by dense smoke and heat.

Mrs Guinle's husband Tony said she had set fire to a pile of clothes in her bedroom on February 8, 2013, and when he returned with water from the kitchen, a mattress was beginning to be engulfed in flames.

Firefighters got the blaze under control quickly – but the property was gutted.

The inquest heard that Mr Guinle, a managing director, had to be treated for smoke inhalation and burns after escaping when his efforts to bring his wife to safety had failed.

Outside he told Fothergill's staff: "She won't leave until the fire brigade arrive."

An engineer from the factory forced open a door and a window but no-one could get in to rescue Mrs Guinle because of dense smoke and intense heat.

Her body was identified using dental records.

Police said there had been no suspicious circumstances and the fire was not due to an electrical fault, said Suffolk

TRAGIC: The scene of the fire which claimed the life of Anne Guinle last year

folk Coroner Dr Peter Dean.

A post mortem conducted by Home Office pathologist Dr Benjamin Swift showed the death had been due to the inhalation of fumes.

Dr Dean said medical records indicated Mrs Guinle was being treated by mental health professionals at the time of her death and had appeared to have previously taken an overdose of pills and swallowed weedkiller with the intention of being admitted to hospital.

The inquest heard Mrs Guinle had suffered from an anxiety disorder and post traumatic stress after she had been a passenger on a bus that was hit by another vehicle three and a half years earlier.

Recording a narrative verdict that Mrs Guinle died as a result of a fire, Dr Dean said he could not be certain she had intended the consequences of her actions.

Dr Dean said: "This may have been an accidental outcome to a cry for help that had tragically gone wrong."

"It is clear that her husband did what he could in these very difficult circumstances to get her out of the premises."

Although Mrs Guinle was receiving support, her actions on that day could not have been foreseen, he said.

Safe containing cash stolen in burglary

A SAFE has been stolen during a burglary in Newmarket.

Police are appealing to witnesses to the incident which occurred between 1pm and 6.30pm on Wednesday, January 15 at an address in Waterloo Close.

Offenders entered the property by smashing their way through a rear window.

A safe containing in excess of £1,500 was stolen, along with a gold sovereign coin, a gold T-bar and keys to a vehicle.

LIZZY BUCHAN

FEVERED speculation has begun into the future success of the first foal of the iconic racehorse Frankel.

The bay colt was born on Saturday, January 11, and bookmakers have already started placing bets on him emulating his father's unprecedented success on the track.

William Hill have quoted punters with 50/1 odds on the foal winning the 2,000 Guineas at Newmarket in 2017 and 66/1 to land the Derby at Epsom in the same year.

The firm has also offered 4/1 on any of Frankel's offspring winning a British Classic race, which are the top races in the country and represent the pinnacle of a horse's achievements.

Jon Ivan-Duke, spokesman for William Hill, said: "Frankel was just so popular that it generates interest in these races so far in advance."

"It is kind of unprecedented."

The offspring of Frankel have been hotly anticipated throughout the racing world after the superstar horse ended his career unbeaten by taking his 14th victory at Ascot in 2012.

He now stands at Banstead Manor Stud, in Cheveley, the European headquarters of Prince Khalid Abdullah's Juddmonte Farms, where he commands a stud fee of £125,000 a time.

WHO'S THE DADDY: Frankel at Banstead Manor Stud

Since starting his season on Valentine's Day last year, Frankel has covered 133 mares, of which 126 have been scanned in foal.

Dual group-winning mare Chrysanthemum gave birth to the bay colt at 8.30pm on January 11, at Coolmore Stud in Ireland.

The news of his first foal was met with great delight by staff at Juddmonte Farms who reported the foal is "a handsome colt with a good head, a white blaze and great presence".

Philip Mitchell, general manager, said: "From the reports that I have received Frankel's first foal is everything we could have hoped for."

"These are very exciting times for everyone who has supported the horse and we much look forward to the rest of his first crop of foals."

In a moving twist, the newborn foal will share a birthday with the late Sir Henry Cecil, who trained Frankel at Warren Place yard, in Newmarket.

After earning a reported £15 million for his first season as a sire, it is thought Frankel's breeding career could reap a total of more than £100 million.

In December, a mare in foal to Frankel called Dancing Rain fetched £4.2 million at the Tattersalls, in Newmarket.

STRICTLY FUN: Cynthia George with couples taking part in her ballroom dance classes

Ballroom set for toe-tapping success

DUST off your dancing shoes for a ballroom dancing class in Newmarket.

Classes will be held at the Turner Hall where beginners can pick up tips on how to rumba or experts can polish their quickstep.

After learning to dance in Cambridge when she was a teenager, Cynthia George came back to dancing in 2000 when she qualified as a teacher.

She said: "Learn to ballroom dance in a friendly informal atmosphere and have fun. Above all I would like you to get as much pleasure from dancing as I have over the years."

Classes take place on Tuesday and Thursday evenings as well as Saturday dances at 7.30pm each month in aid of the Motor Neurone Disease Association. Call (01954) 202095 or 07515 534430 or email c.i.george@ntlworld.com.

Lasers shone at planes 'putting lives at risk'

FLIGHTS are being targeted by a laser light as they fly over the region – putting lives at risk.

The light was shone at the cabin of a passenger airliner on January 3 as it flew over the Burwell and Swaffham Prior area on its way from Amsterdam to Cambridge Airport.

Police have now issued a stark warning after an increase in similar incidents.

These include a laser 'attack' on an executive jet from Marshall's airfield on December 7, 2013, and two occasions where the East of England Air Ambulance has been targeted – on October 28 and 29 of the same year.

The beam from a laser can light up the cockpit of an aircraft and dazzle the pilot, causing temporary blindness and putting the crew and passengers at risk.

Terry Holloway, group support executive at Marshall, said: "This is a very stupid thing to do and I know that the police are very keen on catching and prosecuting anyone who does this and that the courts take a tough line."

"Passenger airliners are at less risk because they are flying quite high and have two pilots but it is the police helicopters and air ambulances that are more vulnerable as they fly at about 500ft."

A spokesman for Cambridgeshire Constabulary said: "There has been an increase in reported incidents over the last month of a green laser light being shone at aircraft flying over the Burwell and Swaffham Prior area.

"This is very dangerous as it can impair visibility for aircraft pilots and lead to potentially serious outcomes."

"Any person found guilty will face a large fine and/or imprisonment."

"The police will be conducting patrols in the area with the aim of preventing and detecting any further offences."

"Please be vigilant and if you see anyone engaging in this type of behaviour please give us a call."

Anyone with information is asked to call the police on 101.

Solar farm plan submitted for Reach

PLANS have been submitted for a 104 hectare solar park on the outskirts of a village.

Royston-based company Solar Associates have put forward their proposals to East Cambridgeshire District Council for 13,000 panels on land at Lapwing Fen, outside Reach.

It is anticipated the solar park could supply enough electricity for 10,127 homes and would generate 45 megawatts of electricity.

The applicant said they are sensitive to any "visual intrusion" within the landscape, as the proposed site is close to an area of protected fenland.

Footballers donate to youth sports

A NEW six-a-side football league has kicked off its career by donating £1,000 to a project providing free sport for young people in the district.

Leisure Leagues, which is starting a new six-a-side league at Newmarket Leisure Centre this month, has donated £1,000 of equipment and coaches uniforms to Anglia Community Leisure (ACL) for its Street Sports programme.

Street Sports aims to provide young people with a fun and safe environment to play sport and to keep them engaged and off the streets.

For the last three years Street Sports has had over 18,000 attendances at sessions in Forest Heath and has been praised by Suffolk Police for helping to reduce antisocial behaviour in the district.

Keiran Williams, ACL Sport and Physical Activity Development Officer, said: "We are very grateful to Leisure Leagues for their kind donation to our Street Sports project."

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

"The equipment and coaches uniforms will allow us to focus funding efforts on the direct delivery of sessions, while giving coaches the best possible resources to deliver the sessions."

The Newmarket Leisure Leagues six-a-side league started on Monday, January 20.

It will run every week with matches starting at 7pm.

Chris Rowntree, from Leisure Leagues, said: "We are absolutely thrilled to be starting this league and bringing one of our community competitions to Newmarket for the first time."

"We are delighted that we were able to make the donation of equipment and cannot wait for the big kick off."

Street Sports runs at Newmarket Leisure Centre on Friday from 8pm to 10pm.

For more information on Leisure Leagues go to www.leisureleagues.net.

HELPING HAND: John Durrant, from Newmarket Open Door, and Brian Williams from the Cambridge Masonic Hall

Freemasons dig deep for foodbank

A FOODBANK has received a helping hand from the Cambridge freemasons.

As part of their charitable efforts, the Cambridge Masonic Hall, in Bateman Street, donated £500 to the Foodbank run by homelessness charity Newmarket Open Door.

John Durrant, manager of Newmarket Open Door, said: "We are very grateful because obviously it will be of great benefit to the people they serve."

"It was an unexpected donation and very much appreciated."

The Newmarket Open Door Foodbank hands out food and household products to help the most disadvantaged people through charities and voluntary organisations.

A BOUTIQUE hotel has opened its doors at a historic site near Newmarket.

More than 400 guests attended glittering receptions last week at Paddocks House, in Six Mile Bottom, to celebrate its opening.

David Toulson Burke, managing director of The House Collection which owns the hotel said: "We've been absolutely astounded at the positive response we have received from guests and visitors to Paddocks House."

"It's been a real joy to restore this amazing venue to its former glory."

Hot on the heels of sister hotel Poets House, in Ely, which opened in April last year, Paddocks House will offer high-quality hospitality and fine dining and host special events and weddings in the splendid new Garden Room.

The property has an illustrious history, as legendary racehorse Brigadier Gerard is buried in the grounds and it was once owned by the sister of poet Lord Byron.

Each of the 13 rooms comes with a personal butler to look after guests' needs – and will even run your bath in the beautiful freestanding copper bathtubs, which are a feature in every bedroom.

Paddocks House will host a Wedding Open Day on January 26 from 11am to 4pm, covering everything from make up to flowers.

The five-acre site was formerly home to Swynford Paddocks.

CHOOSING a wedding gift for a friend or relative can often be a dilemma, but new research highlights how this is changing amid a trend of couples asking for money not presents, writes Vicky Shaw.

It might not be prime wedding season at the moment, but the winter months are an increasingly popular time for couples to say 'I do'.

In fact, not long ago, I attended the wedding of two friends. It was a perfect, if chilly, day and it was much enjoyed by all – not much out of the ordinary there. But one aspect of the wedding was, for me, a bit more unusual – the bride and groom requested cash contributions from their guests, instead of having the standard list of presents.

After a bit of investigation though, I soon discovered that my friends were not alone in their decision, with recent research showing the traditional wedding gift list is generally slipping into decline in favour of cash.

A survey, by the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS), found that one fifth (21%) of over 500 people in the UK who'd tied the knot in the last five years had asked guests to choose a present from a wedding list, but a substantial 40% requested money towards the cost of something.

Almost one quarter (23%) used that cash towards the cost of the wedding itself, or the honeymoon, and one in 14 wanted to put the money towards buying a house or make a donation to charity.

So be prepared!

THE BIG DAY: But do cash gifts make it easier or more complicated for wedding guests?

Fixed prices are popular with family-run Manchetts

MANCHETTS, the family-run car service centre based in Burwell, celebrated 50 years in the village in 2011 and is rightly proud of its "transparent and justified fixed pricing".

Fixed prices for repairs to all makes and models start at £59.99.

"If you want your car serviced with us you know exactly what you'll pay and I think that's really important in this day and age," says marketing manager Mandy Manchett. "People can see what they're paying for, there's no hidden extras."

With six technicians in the workshop service manager John Wyatt is pleased with the level of service the firm is able to offer, which includes use of a Citroen DS3 as a courtesy car, a mobile tyre fitting service - "we'll come out and supply and fit tyres within a 25-mile radius of Burwell" - and a collection and delivery service. The waiting area has wi-fi reception, and where possible the work is carried out on the spot. Battery bulbs and wiper blades are fixed while you wait.

John is also proud of the fact that not only is Manchetts a family-run firm since it first opened its doors in 1961, but staff also develop positive relationships with customers. "I've been here since I was 16," he says, "and one of our technicians, Paul Stokes, has been here 13 years."

Manchetts is able to look after all your car, van and truck needs, with servicing, MoT and repair options available on request along with an extensive range of quality used cars.

Pop along to the Burwell site for a friendly chat with one of our sales staff!

Fast-tracking to a racing supremacy

Rob Huff is the schoolboy who dreamed of being a racing driver when he grew up – then made that dream come true.

Alice Ryan meets him to talk about the highs and lows of life on the racetrack

RACING driver Rob Huff is the first to admit he's a lucky man. "The fact someone pays me to do the thing I love most in the world – to drive – still seems incredible when I stop and think about it," he grins.

"To make a living from something you absolutely adore... Genuinely, what could be better than that?"

Motorsport – both Rob's profession and his lifelong passion – is, he concedes, a fickle mistress. But, at the moment at least, she's being kind.

"There are massive highs – like winning the World Touring Car Championship, which was my ultimate dream come true – but there are also huge lows," explains Rob.

"2012 was an amazing year: I won the championship, got married... and then Chevrolet, who I'd been driving with for eight years, announced they were pulling out, stopping altogether.

"I went on honeymoon with no job, no plans, no sponsor; with nothing at all. That's where motorsport can be heartbreaking."

Having just signed a two-year contract with Lada Sport – two-year contracts being rare and wonderful things in the world of motor racing; usually deals are renegotiated every 12 months – it's safe to say Rob has bounced back.

"Yeah, it's all looking good. My wife Jas is out looking at holiday brochures right now: I was such a miserable sod on our honeymoon, she thinks she deserves another one! Not that I blame her, mind you..."

There has been something of the fairytale about Rob's story from the outset: just how does a perfectly ordinary Cambridge schoolboy grow up to become one of the world's most garlanded touring car drivers? "Ah, well, that's a long story," says Rob. "Do you want another coffee?"

Sitting in a Newmarket café – just up the road from the home he now shares with Jas in Red Lodge – Rob tells the tale from the beginning, when he was just a 'wee lad'...

"I was attracted to anything with wheels or an engine," remembers the 34-year-old. "From as early as I can remember, I wanted remote control cars for Christmas and birthdays. And the racing side of it came from my dad, who's a huge motorsport fan."

When Rob turned 14, his parents bought him an early driver's lesson: "I went to Brands Hatch and got to drive a grey Ford Escort XR3i – I still remember that car! – and I thought it was the best day of my life.

"Concentration didn't come so easily in the classroom, yet in a car I was totally focused."

But it was Rob's flare in a go-kart that first made him stand out on the race track. Taking a one-day course aged 10 – another present from his parents – Rob was identified as having natural talent: "The guy who was leading the course took my dad to one side and said 'Your boy might have something'..."

By the age of 16, Rob had his own kart and was racing whenever and wherever he could, even doing endurance challenges. His talent was spotted by a karting team, who paid him to drive for them.

"My birthday is on Christmas Day, not the best time of year for a birthday really, but it did mean that I got some amazing two-in-one presents growing up," says Rob, picking up the story.

"For my 18th it was a week-long intensive driving course at Silverstone, where we learned about all the different disciplines and things like racing lines, how to brake..."

The course culminated in two races between all the 'racing virgins': one was in a single seater, the other in a saloon car – and Rob won them both.

"You can teach someone to drive fast, but you can't teach them to race: that's instinctive, you've either got it or you haven't. You have to be able to make instant decisions without even being conscious that you're making a decision, if that makes sense? It's a sixth sense, if you like."

It was clear Rob had enormous potential. "I always dreamed of being a racing driver, but that's what it was – a dream. I come from a very down-to-earth family; I don't think it crossed any of our minds at that point that I could make a career out of driving."

Rob was nevertheless keen to pursue the sport. But without a clear pathway laid out, it was hard to know how to take it to the next level.

"It's not like football or tennis, where you can go out and get yourself the best kit for a hundred quid, then put yourself in the right place to get spotted."

This is where the fairytale element kicks in. The course Rob excelled on was run by Jim Russell Racing School, which leads driving courses across the globe. At the end of the season, all the course leaders were asked to nominate their three best pupils – and invite them to compete in a knockout challenge at Silverstone, with the top prize being a fully-funded season in the Formula Vauxhall Junior Championship.

You can guess what happened next. "That was the next 'best day of my life,'" remembers Rob. "It was a bit like The X Factor – they kept us waiting for what felt like an eternity before telling us who'd won."

Rob's debut season, in 2000, was a triumph: "It was fantastic: I won the championship. But then it was a case of 'Where next?'...

"That's where my mum and dad's kitchen table came into things: whenever we need to come up with a plan, we get round that table."

The plan was a big one: to put Rob into the single-seater Audi Winter Series, as it was known then. "It was a big deal because it cost a lot of money – £12,000, I think it was. My mum paid for me to do it. She said it was an investment; as it turns out, it was a pretty good one."

Going from the Vauxhall ('which was basically like a canoe on wheels') to the Audi ('400 horse power, so properly quick'), Rob wasn't expecting to excel – it was, by any standards, a big leap. Yet he finished the series in third.

"Literally 99 per cent of little boys who want to grow up to be racing drivers want to go into Formula One, but for me it was always about touring cars."

Rob and his family decided to take a gamble, entering him in the Formula Renault series – which came with a £150,000 price tag. Thanks to sponsorship from local companies and the generosity of family and friends, the Huff's raised half the money: "We went into the season knowing we didn't have the full budget... so the money ran out: it was back to the kitchen table."

But then Rob had another stroke of luck: his sister spotted an ad inviting budding drivers to apply for another scholarship, this time with a season in a Renault Clio up for grabs.

"The first time I raced the Renault I knew it was going to be good for me. I'd won a championship in a single seater; I was fast. But I always felt I was pushing the boundaries a bit. With the Clio, I just felt an instant connection."

Winning the scholarship, Rob went up against seasoned pros in the Clio: "Here I was, 22 years old and new to the game, racing against people who'd been doing it for 10, 15 years..." He ended the season in third – but yet again, with the scholarship at an end, without financial backing.

Appointed a mentor – ex-F1 driver Howden Ganley – by the British Racing

Drivers' Club, Rob was advised to take part in the inaugural Seat Cupra Cup: being new and shiny, it was televised (presented by Jason Plato and Nell McAndrew, no less) and would undoubtedly raise his profile. Again drumming up sponsorship from local businesses, including Marshalls, Rob managed to pull together the funds.

"I knew if I didn't win, that was it; I knew it was make or break. Every morning, throughout 2003, I woke up and told myself 'I'm going to do this. I'm going to win.' And win he did."

The win was his ticket to the British Touring Car Championship – just one rung down the ladder from his ultimate goal, World Touring Cars. And when the Chevrolet team, headed by Ray Mallock, took on World Touring Cars the following season, Rob went with them.

"That was the start of eight fantastic years for me. I travelled all over the world, went to some amazing places, and my career became real, if you know what I mean?"

"I finished my first season in 27th, went up to 16th, then 11th, then 9th. And then, in 2011, I lost out on the championship by three points: 430 to 433. Shaking the other guy's hand was one of the hardest things I've ever had to do."

there three times, and won a record six races outright. It's my favourite track."

The celebrations continued with Rob's wedding to Jas. The couple grew up less than a mile apart, in the village of Stapleford, but didn't meet until seven years ago, while on a night out at Newmarket club De Niro's.

"Honestly, what with the championship and the wedding, 2012 was the perfect year – until the bombshell dropped about Chevrolet. I spent most of our honeymoon in Mauritius checking my emails and making calls, and then, four days from the end, I got a call from Munnich Motorsport." And so Rob found himself back in the Seat Leon for a season, before signing his new two-year deal with Lada Sport.

Along with his parents, sister and friends, Rob says Jas has been a huge source of support. But Mrs Huff admits there are times when she worries: "The first race I ever watched was in Mexico. We'd only been together a few months. Rob had a really bad accident and had to be air-lifted away... It wasn't the best start! But he's so calm and confident, it reassures me."

"If there's one piece of advice I'd give anyone out there who's got a dream – whether they want to be a racing driver or anything else – it would be

Poirot is alive!

THE really crucial thing is: who would win in a battle between Poirot and Sherlock?

It's obviously the question you're all desperate to know the answer to, so I couldn't help but ask BAFTA-nominated Robert Powell, the man playing the inquiring, moustachioed Hercule Poirot in Black Coffee at the Cambridge Arts Theatre this week.

The play, Agatha Christie's one and only revolving around Poirot, is finally returning after a 30-year hiatus and features: the Belgian super-sleuth, a rambling country estate, an eccentric murder victim (an inventor by the name of Sir Claude Amory), and intellectual property theft.

Exciting news, no? But seriously, who would win: the cap or the tache? Sherlock the 'high functioning sociopath', or the probing, painstaking Poirot?

"They're completely different," says Powell diplomatically. "With Holmes it is almost entirely done by deduction, Poirot is much more of a psychoanalyst. He is much better with people and this is how he gets results. He understands people very, very well and he likes them so he can get to the truth by knowing which questions to ask."

"It's not so much the observation of somebody's occupation by detecting ink marks on their shirt cuffs; that's not really Poirot."

Best known for playing Jesus in Franco Zeffirelli's Jesus of Nazareth, Powell has just completed a stint in Singin' in the Rain at the Palace Theatre ("It was huge fun") and, as we speak, is in a taxi, breaking off occasionally to politely shout directions at the driver ("LEFT! There's a level crossing!").

His current role as the powerfully inquisitive murder-mystery solver comes in the wake of the television series, which ended David Suchet's reign as Poirot in November after a hefty 25 years.

Suchet first took charge of the irascible detective in 1989, going on to film every book

Christie ever wrote about him, and, as the final episode drew near, told the BBC: "It's grieving. I'm saying goodbye to a character I've been and have got to know over 25 years... it's goodbye to a best friend," adding: "But everything has its time and this is the right time, there are no more Agatha Christie films to make. So that's it."

While there might not be any TV films left to make, it turns out the Agatha Christie Trust had sneakily held back the one play Christie wrote with Poirot as the protagonist, Black Coffee.

"They'd held it back for 30 years, purely and simply because they didn't want to do it while the television [show] was on," Powell explains. "It would not be in competition, so to speak, but it would be distracting."

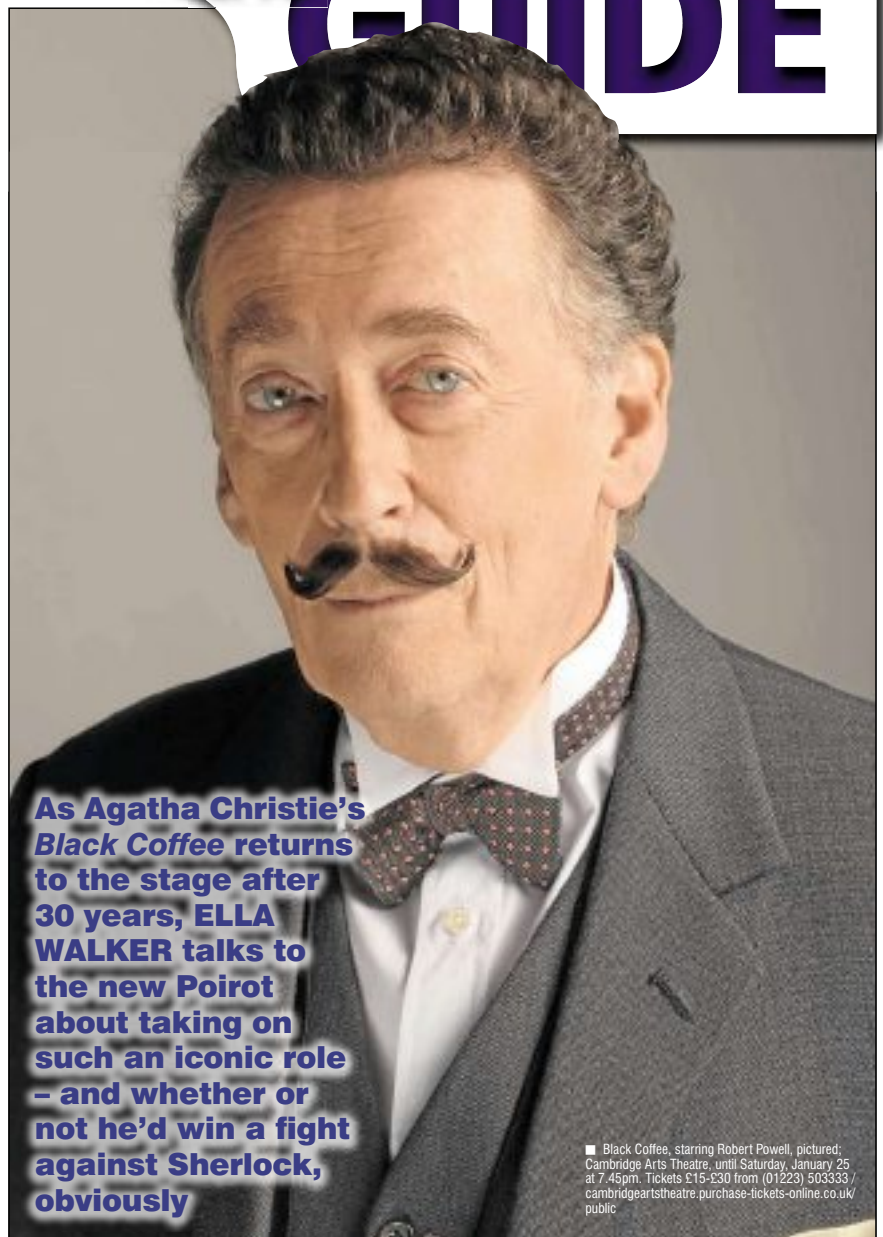

Once it had been announced that David was stripping off the moustache and hanging up his notebook, the trust released the play to rights-holder Bill Kenwright, who swiftly approached Powell to take on the mantle.

"After a little bit of thought..." says Powell, pausing: "I didn't really know Christie at all - I'd read the play, a lot of fun - it seemed like a nice proposition. There was no theatre Poirot, so I thought, why not me?"

With the character so recognisably Suchet though - the two are intermingled to a point where it's difficult to untangle one from the other - how will Powell's interpretation and incarnation of Poirot differ?

"Oh it's completely different because it's me. It's a simple as that," he says firmly. "I have the same moustache, but all performances of Hamlet are different even though the actor is saying the same lines. It is different because the actor playing it is different from the one who played it before. Every actor, when playing a part, will bring to it who they are and what they do, and that's just how it works."

Royal Philharmonic Orchestra

A NIGHT of American classics is set to thrill the Corn Exchange audience when one of the nation's best-loved ensembles takes to the stage for the first time as orchestra in residence.

Rising star David Charles Abell will conduct the Royal Philharmonic with award-winning piano soloist Freddy Kempf, who made his first major concert appearance with the orchestra at the age of 8.

He went on to win the coveted BBC Young Musician of the Year Award and is now, aged 36, one of the most sought-after pianists in the world.

You will even be able to bring along your mobile device of choice and watch a streamed film of local youngsters dancing to the infectious rhythms of the jazz-inspired music.

The concert will open with Gershwin's upbeat Girl Crazy Overture, I Got Rhythm Variations and the haunting Rhapsody in Blue, with its Copland's Rodeo excerpts exhibit the sheer energy and exuberance of a Broadway musical and Bernstein's On the Town: Four Dance Episodes are a refreshing blend of jazz, pop and symphonic music.

The evening will end on a playful note with Gershwin's whimsical An American in Paris, made famous by MGM's Oscar-winning 1951 film which starred Gene Kelly.

The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra will be back in Cambridge on Thursday, March 13, with major works by Beethoven and featuring piano soloist John Lill.

film of the week

JACK RYAN: SHADOW RECRUIT
certificate 12A, 1h45m

DEDICATED to the memory of Tom Clancy who died in October, Jack Ryan: Shadow Recruit is an old-fashioned espionage thriller which revives the writer's most popular fictional character. Unlike its predecessors (The Hunt For Red October, Patriot Games, Clear And Present Danger or The Sum Of All Fears), Kenneth Branagh's film is not adapted from a specific book in the series. Instead, scriptwriters Adam Cozad and David Koepp transplant the eponymous CIA operative into a modern-day terrorist scenario to lay the foundations for a new big screen franchise.

The film opens with footage of the September 11 attacks and then jumps forwards two years to the conflict in Afghanistan where enemy forces shoot down a US Marine Corps helicopter. On board is Second Lieutenant Jack Ryan (Chris Pine), who incurs massive damage to his spine.

Thanks to encouragement from medical student Cathy

Muller (Keira Knightley), Ryan learns to walk again and fatherly CIA agent William Harper (Kevin Costner) encourages him to return to university to complete his economics degree.

A decade later Ryan is married to Cathy and firmly in the CIA fold, looking for irregularities in overseas finance transactions that could tip the wink to future terrorist activity. Recent findings suggest an imminent strike that could cripple the US economy but he has no way to verify his data from the confines of a desk.

So Handler promotes Ryan to field agent and dispatches him to Moscow to follow up on his hunch. While in Russia he meets an enigmatic businessman called Viktor Cherevin (Kenneth Branagh), who seems to be at the centre of the diabolical plot.

Jack Ryan: Shadow Recruit is solid, undemanding popcorn entertainment that doesn't deviate from a well-worn path. It's solid, bombastic entertainment, punctuated by outrageous, briskly edited action sequences that owe a sizeable debt to The Bourne Identity and its influential sequels.

Keep watch out for garden birds

THERE'S never really an excuse for not having a bird feeder standing in your garden. But with the RSPB's Big Garden Birdwatch taking place on Saturday and Sunday, there is no better time to invest in a bird feeder, or two, to keep our feathered friends happy during the winter and beyond.

There's a plethora of bird feeders on sale, but the RSPB advises keeping in mind some general rules when buying one.

Hanging feeders should be simple designs so they are easy to clean.

Feeders with cages around the feeding area or with squirrel guards are used to prevent squirrel problems. Metal varieties tend to be more squirrel-resistant.

Also, ensure there are no moving parts which could trap birds' feet, make sure the products can drain easily, and avoid using mesh bags to house fat balls, because birds' feet can also become trapped in those.

Henry Corbett, Solus Garden & Leisure's head of gardening brands, says: "One of the most important considerations should be that the bird feeder is suitable for the type of food it's going to hold.

"For example, seed mixes need a specialist seed feeder. Most suppliers will sell specific feed designed for individual species such as blackbirds, robins and blue tits, so ensure you have the right feeder for the feed you intend to use.

"Robins and blackbirds are ground feeding birds and require surface feeders. Other birds, such as blue tits, cling on hanging feeders.

He also advises gardeners to hang feeders away from trees and walls to avoid giving cats easy access to birds, preferably on metal poles that the cat can't climb up or jump on to.

"Finally, don't forget feeding is a year-round requirement. If you start feeding the birds in your garden, don't stop – birds become reliant on your help."

Here're just a few of the best feeders on the market:

■ Feed your garden visitors with a quirky ceramic bird feeder from Suttons which features a mixed floral design and comes complete with hanging chain. (£10.99, www.suttons.co.uk, or call 0844 922 0606)

■ Protect your bird feed from pests while bringing classic style into the garden, with a ChapelWood antique bird feeder. Made from hardwearing steel, each high capacity feeder features an integral tube, surrounded by an ornate anti-squirrel cage.

Embellished with floral details and a pre-weathered finish, the feeders are available in either dark verdigris or light cream. Each design can be bought as a peanut and sunflower feeder or a seed feeder. (£29.99, for stockists visit www.chapelwoodwildlife.co.uk)

■ If you want a feeder which fits into a rural setting, check out another design from Suttons.

It's a hanging willow feeder complete with roof to keep the contents dry. It features six separate compartments, each containing carefully selected seeds to attract a variety of birds. (£20.99)

■ Children will love this ChapelWood Robin Fun Feeder, pictured above, (£7.99). It's ideal for use with sunflower hearts, black sunflowers and peanuts. Made from painted metal mesh it is designed to attract a wild variety of birds to the garden.

■ Pretty, practical and fun, the terracotta acorn bird feeder from the RSPB is frost-resistant with three feeding holes. Hang it from a tree or feeding station and fill it with mealworms or seeds to attract the birds. (£13.50, www.rspb.org.uk)

■ Want to keep squirrels at bay but keep the birds coming? Take a look at the Guardian large seed feeder pack from CJ Wildlife (£37.95, www.birdfood.co.uk, or Freephone 0800 731 2820) which features a central feeder with six portals on which birds can perch, surrounded by a sturdy cage to keep squirrels out.

■ For smaller birds, consider the RSPB-recommended Helix Seed Feeder (£34.99, www.rspb.org.uk), an attractive feeder housed within a sturdy stainless steel frame, offering safe feeding for smaller birds with high squirrel resistance.

■ An elegant arched station rather like an obelisk, which has bird feeders hanging from it, is available from Harrod Horticultural.

Available in galvanised and matt black powder coated steel framework, it comes with a 10 year guarantee. Up to three feeders can be hung on the squirrel-proof fixing hooks which stop feeders being unhooked and thrown to the ground. (£59, www.harrodhorticultural.com, call 0845 402 5300)

Whatley Lane Estate Agents launches unique and innovative estate agency TV. Opening the door to the next generation of property marketing.

Whatley Lane is introducing the new face of property marketing this spring with www.wlea.tv

The launch of their online TV channel marks an exciting new chapter for the company, particularly as Whatley Lane Estate Agents will be the only estate agent in the area to have this new facility.

This innovative product additionally demonstrates Whatley Lane commitment to providing its clientele with market leading services, while also representing a significant step forward in the way the company's teams present properties. The online TV channel will really help to sell homes and attract buyers, while also going above and beyond what competitors offer.

A professionally produced and scripted video walkthrough of every property on Whatley Lane's portfolio will be streamed to the online TV channel. These online video walkthroughs will enable potential buyers to explore new homes without having to leave the comfort of their armchair. Online videos are proving to be extremely popular and effective for property marketing, as they allow the seller to showcase particular features of their home, which might not be possible with traditional newspaper or magazine advertising.

EXCLUSIVITY

Whatley Lane is the only agent in the area to utilise this service, which reinforces their aim to bring high quality service and exceptional local knowledge to every one of their customers. There really is no one better to help you find or sell your property.

STRONG DEMAND FOR PROPERTIES

2014 HAS GOT OFF TO A GREAT START AND THIS IS REFLECTED IN BOTH THE
NUMBER OF SALES ACHIEVED AND THE PRICES BEING ACHIEVED.

With the lack of available properties on the market at an all time low this may well be an ideal time to place your property on the market and achieve the best possible price. With the lack of competition from other similar homes you may well find the price achieved exceeds your expectation.

To find out more about the property market and how the "HELP TO BUY SCHEME" could benefit you, why not book a free market appraisal. We would be happy to give you an accurate market valuation of your home and help you with your requirements and future move.

Motoworks' free check

ED Upward used to be the aftersales manager at Haywards motorcycle shop, but when the business moved to Gorton last year it meant that the site on Histon Road became empty and when an offer came along he decided to set up shop there and that's how Motoworks Cambridge opened its doors on January 2, 2014, writes Mike Scialom.

"I carried on as aftersales manager for Haywards for a few months at Gorton and the opportunity came up to take on a smaller premises based where Haywards had been and so we've taken over their old workshop and office," says Ed. "Having a smaller section gave me the opportunity to make a good go of it."

"Our core business is motorcycles but we also do some marine work," adds Ed, whose firm employs three people operating on a workshop and office on the site where the legendary motorcycle retailer used to be. "Haywards is concentrating on sales of their franchises and we're running an all-makes motorcycle and scooter workshop and service centre, and selling all makes and sizes of used motorcycles and scooters." The site has room for up to ten motorcycles inside and room for another eight outside.

"The sorts of vehicles we have on sale at the moment include a Suzuki 600 GXR at £1,495, a Vespa LXV 125, limited edition, for £2,495, and the range goes down to a Yamaha Neo's for £595."

Motoworks specialises in servicing and MoT work, "and we're also offering a brokerage for people with bikes so we can sell their wheels on their behalf."

The marine side of Motoworks also involves servicing and maintaining outboard engines. "We can't do onboard boat engines obviously but we do a collection service in the East Anglia region, and this side of the business will help fill the quieter months – the motorcycle business is March to September whereas marine is all year round. I've worked on outboard engines since I was quite young and the kit is quite similar so we're well set up."

"We're also offering storage as well as servicing on outboard engines."

Motoworks has a free winter check for scooters and motorcycles available on request. Contact the team on (01223) 361831, at motoworkscambridge.co.uk or via email to ed.upward@motoworkscambridge.co.uk.

Blasbery is pressed for success with big crown

JACKIE Blasbery and Jenny Hunter have tasted glory at the Commonwealth Powerlifting Championships in New Zealand.

Newmarket lifter Blasbery took gold in the women's under-84kg equipped and unequipped sections in the Masters 2 category in Auckland to add to the world title she retained last year.

Blasbery lifted 130kg in the squat, 82.5kg on the bench press and 165kg in the dead lift for a total of 377.5kg in the unequipped class before hitting 152.5kg (squat), 105kg (bench) and 180kg (dead lift) for an overall of 437.5kg in the equipped section.

Meanwhile, her training partner

Hunter came out on top in the women's Masters 2 division at under-52kg in the equipped section with respective scores of 110kg, 77.5kg and 155kg in the squat, bench press and dead lift for a total of 342.5kg.

But the Cambridge lifter had to settle for silver in the under-57kg unequipped category behind Australia's Helen Allen, despite lifting an overall score of 292.5kg (85kg squat, 70kg bench and 130kg dead lift).

It follows the pair's success at the World Masters Championships in Orlando last autumn in the women's over-50 class at under-84kg and under-52kg respectively.

Impressive victory for first team

NEWMARKET produced a dominant display to defeat Haverhill II 4-0 in East Women's League, Division 3NW(S).

The hosts lacked a bit of drive in the final third to convert their chances early on, but they took the lead when Grace Evans fired in her first goal for the firsts this season.

Vicky Sievewright had a good debut and regularly got moves going in the right direction, while Kerry Alderson was a real presence on the right.

With just a one-goal advantage at half time, strong words needed to be said to inspire a better performance, and it did not take them long to get into their stride after the break.

Some brilliant driving work from Zoe Bailey forced a short corner, from which the ball fell to Lydia Evans, who launched an unstoppable shot into the goal.

Gail Parkins then got the team's third goal following good work from Claire McDonnell, before Di Thomas came on to get the fourth with her first touch.

There was a 5-1 defeat for the thirds at the hands of Huntingdon II, with Brooke LeMaire getting the goal as the young side continued to show good signs of improvement.

But the men's firsts, for whom Will Wilson struck, suffered a damaging 4-1 loss to Norwich City II in East Men's League, Division 2N.

Drivers aiming for victorious Rolex 24

OLIVER Jarvis and Rob Huff will be looking to get 2014 off to a perfect start at the Rolex 24.

The Newmarket drivers will be racing in different classes at Daytona this weekend, with Jarvis looking for a second consecutive triumph in the GT category following his debut win last year.

Huff will drive an Oreca FLM09 LMPC in the Prototype Challenge class for 8Star Motorsports with Tom Kimber-Smith and Enzo Potolicchio.

Jarvis will be driving for the Fall-Line team with Charlie Putnam, Charles Espenlaub, and James Walker in an Audi R8 LMS (GTD).

"It's great to be heading back to Daytona to try to repeat the win we achieved last year," he said.

"I'm thrilled to be invited back as part of Audi's customer racing programme."

At the recent Roar before the 24 test, Jarvis and his team recorded the 16th fastest time in the GTD class, less than a second adrift of the leading car.

"The level this year is extremely high and there are at least 15 cars in our class capable of fighting for the class win," he added.

Huff, who will also contest this year's World Touring Car Championship, with Lada Sport Lukoil, said: "I'm excited to be making my 24 Hours of Daytona debut.

"The limited experience I gained during the Roar test was enough to whet my appetite and I can't wait to get behind the wheel of 8Star Motorsports' prototype."

The Rolex 24 is run on a 3.56-mile track which combines the NASCAR tri-oval and an infield section. Most parts of the steep banking are included, with a chicane on the back straight and a fast infield section.

Qualifying takes place on Friday, with the race starting on Saturday at 7.30pm (UK time).

> Football: Thurlow Nunn League

KEVIN Grainger felt Newmarket could have got more against bottom side Woodbridge Town after running out 2-0 victors at Cricket Field Road in the Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division.

Goals either side of half time from Lee Clift and Ross Paterson secured the win for Newmarket.

Jockeys boss Grainger was delighted to get back to winning ways after a

Newmarket return to winning ways defeat the previous week.

"They had a header they probably should have scored from early on, but after that we've dominated," he said.

"We could have had more because we created a lot of chances, but we deserved to win."

The win keeps Newmarket in the top 10, but they are not back in action until Tuesday.

That match sees them travel to runaway league leaders Hadleigh United in the quarter-finals of the Red Insure Cup.

"It's not ideal because after a win you want to keep the momentum going," said Grainger. "I'm sure it's going to be a very hard game against Hadleigh next Tuesday."

Mildenhall did not have a game last weekend and they go looking to end a run of four matches without a win when they travel to Kirkley & Pakefield on Saturday.
